

Steven Langton

General Information

With almost 30 years of legal experience, Steven is a practising barrister-at-law and an accredited mediator with a real commitment to alternative dispute resolution. He prides himself on being a safe pair of hands with the drive and determination to achieve the results his clients want, using a friendly, proactive approach.

Over the past three decades, Steven has experienced a wide variety of both commercial and civil legal matters, including ethical law and dispute resolution activities. From contract disputes to contentious probate, insurance law to insolvency and redundancy to restructuring, he provides advice and opinions both in conference and in writing on a broad range of commercial and financial services sector issues, charities and trusts, employment and civil matters.

With significant advocacy experience, Steven has regularly appeared in the county courts, High Court and Court of Appeal, as well as in tribunals, mediations, arbitrations and joint settlement meetings.

Having worked with major Fortune 500 international companies as well as UK SMEs and private individuals, Steven enjoys working for and with commercial stakeholders, fellow professionals and members of the public to provide and representation for their legal needs.
