Susan Brown ACIArb

IS A QUALIFIED MEDIATOR (Junior Mediator)

General Information

Sue has been involved in mediation for over 25 years, and as a lawyer has successfully resolved many difficult claims, including personal injury and clinical negligence, professional negligence claims, and wide range of other types of claim, through mediation. She has been a qualified mediator in both general civil and commercial mediation and in workplace mediation since 2016. She strongly believes in the power of mediation to facilitate the settlement of even the most ostensibly irresolvable disputes.

She handles a wide range of different types of commercial mediations including personal injury, clinical negligence, professional negligence, property and landlord and tenant disputes, and disputed probate cases. She also handles workplace mediations and a wide range of different types of community mediations.

She qualified as a solitor in 1996, having previously been a legal executive, and has a wide range of experience. She has specialised in professional negligence, clinical negligence and personal injury, but also has experience in both property and commercial work, wills and probate including inheritance disputes, and general litigation.
