Rory is Deputy Manager of the Clerksroom Direct team. He is responsible for supporting Sam Morgan with business development, marketing, management of the wider CRD team and converting direct access enquiries into paid instructions for barristers.

Rory is a team-player who values his relationships with his colleagues (barristers and clerks) and clients very highly. He prides himself on providing a prompt and reliable service to his clients, whilst generating opportunity and income for the barristers he works with. Rory enjoys the variety and fast pace offered to him by his role with Clerksroom Direct and approaches his role with diplomacy and professionalism at all times. He is a committed problem-solver and welcomes the challenges and opportunities offered by a role focused exclusively on the growing direct access market.

Rory joined the team at Clerksroom Direct in 2017. Prior to this, Rory worked with two other traditional sets of chambers in the South West, dedicating specific focus to the generation and management of work arising out of the opportunities presented to the Bar by the advent of the Public Access scheme. Before becoming a barristers' clerk, Rory had a career as an executive search consultant focusing on appointments within the aerospace and automotive engineering industries both in the UK and Europe.

When not at work, Rory's time is more or less completely absorbed by the demands of his young family. If ever the opportunity arises to shake them from his tail, Rory will most likely be found cooking, reading, playing the guitar or trying to escape to southern France to try out new wines.
